MEMORANDUM FOR: Deputy Director for Science and Technology

FROM: 25X1
Acting Director, Foreign Broadcast Information Service

SUBJECT: Countermeasures Capability of the United States to Meet the Total Hostile Intelligence Threat (S)

REFERENCE: DDS&T-2317/82 dated 13 May 1982, Same Subject

Listed below are several suggestions which, if acted upon, FBIS believes would significantly improve the protection and security of FBIS personnel and installations:

2. Emergency Equipment. With additional funds FBIS would be able to purchase Intimus-007 final destruction shredders for Seoul and Tel Aviv, thereby assuring that all bureaus are equipped with such equipment for rapid destruction of classified materials. Emergency radio equipment is required at Austria, Bangkok, Hong Kong, Jordan, Panama, Paraguay, and Seoul bureaus so that FBIS offices and residences at these locations can be tied into the Embassy-controlled emergency radio nets. Approximately $60,000 would be required for this equipment.

3. Physical Security Overseas. Although much has been done, physical security at FBIS bureaus overseas could be enhanced still further. Vaulted areas could be reinforced; access to safes could be made more difficult by constructing vaulted areas where they do not now exist. Television security could be augmented. Local guard services could be contracted where they are not now utilized. We recommend $100,000 be allocated for physical security improvements at overseas locations.

4. Guard Force for JPRS. Though openly identified as a CIA component, the JPRS offices at [redacted] are without any type of protective service. Recent thefts of typewriters after hours demonstrate the vulnerability of the office to any type of penetration. A guard force is required at least overnight and on weekends, if not round-the-clock. The premises are currently open to the public and provide an easy target for demonstrators, terrorists, or enemy agents. [redacted]
